

Support Your Revenue Cycle Where It Needs It Most

Flexible models that adapt to your workflows, systems, and staffing realities

Most revenue cycle models are built one way, even though no two organizations operate the same way. That's where things break down.

Health Prime is designed to be flexible. You can start where performance is slipping and expand support as your needs change, without overhauling how your organization operates.

A revenue cycle partner built around you

You don't have to change your systems or workflows to work with us.

We integrate into your environment, support your team where needed, and adapt as priorities change. Because we work across the full revenue cycle, improvements in one area don't create new issues in another.

System integration

Choose the approach that best supports your environment today.

Work within your systems

- ✓ We operate directly in your existing platforms and workflows, so your team maintains continuity and control.

Use a managed Health Prime environment

- ✓ We provide a fully supported model with our own systems and oversight, designed to improve consistency and reduce internal burden.

Engagement models

Start where you need support and expand as necessary

End-to-end revenue cycle support

- ✓ We take responsibility across front-, middle-, and back-end operations creating a more connected model.

Targeted functional support

- ✓ We step into specific areas like coding, billing, A/R, or patient access to address performance gaps without overhauling your entire operation.

What you get with Health Prime

EMR/PM platform expertise

We work across the systems you already use, including athena, Epic, Cerner, Meditech, NextGen, Tebra, and more.

Built-in scalability

Add capacity without the delays and risk of hiring and training internally.

Specialty-specific know-how

We provide support aligned to the documentation, billing, and payer nuances of your specialty.

Consistent execution across teams

Standardized workflows reduce variability, rework, and missed steps across locations and functions.

Whether you need help in one area or across your entire revenue cycle, Health Prime gives you the flexibility to strengthen performance without adding complexity. Contact us today at hpiinc.com.